DETAILED ACTION

Applicant should note that the pending claims are regarded as only inferentially claiming the engine. The engine is not regarded as being positively claimed.

Claims 1-3, 5, 12, 13, 15 and 17 are objected to because of the following informalities: In the last line of claims 1, 12 and 13, "independent of said key cylinder" is regarded as inaccurate, since the inward movement of the push button of the invention is clearly dependent on the key cylinder, since the key cylinder guides the inward movement of the push button. Appropriate correction is required.

In view of the above claim objections, the claims are rejected as best understood, on prior art, as follows.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1, 3 and 12 as best understood are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Okamura et al (983).

Okamura et al teaches a switch which is capable of actuating an engine, including a key cylinder 7 having a key slot 9, a push button slidable portion 3 for actuating a push button 29a of a switch 29, the push button 29a and switch 29 surrounding the key slot 9, the push button slide 3 having a central portion through which a hole extends to receive the cylinder 7.

Claims 1 and 12 as best understood are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Tamukai (991).

Tamukai teaches a switch device which is capable of actuating an engine, including a key cylinder 20 having a key slot, a push button slidable portion 24 which slides and actuates a switch 52, which switch is used in the operation of starting an engine (it is also noted that a direct starting of an engine is not being claimed), the key slot being arranged in the push button slidable portion 24.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 5 as best understood is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Okamura et al in view of Tibbetts.

Tibbetts teaches that it is well known to provide a switch with a rotor 11' flush with a push button slidable portion 11, as seen in fig. 1. It would have been obvious to modify the switch of Okamura such that the rotor 7 is flush with the push button slidable portion 3, in view of the teaching of Tibbetts, the motivation being that the separate additional covers 8 of Okamura would not be required, as a cost savings measure and to simplify assembly.

Claims 2, 13, 15 and 17 as best understood are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tamukai in view of Goto et al (295).

Tamukai also teaches a communicating means 54 cooperating with an electronic key 56. Goto teaches that it is well known in the engine switch art to utilize a transponder 2 of a key with an antenna coil 4. It would have been obvious to modify the elements 54, 56 of Tamukai to include an antenna coil and a key transponder, in view of the teaching of Goto et al, the motivation being to optimize the security of the lock.

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-3, 5, 12, 13, 15 and 17 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
